This is a great ideaBy Xena_AngelWhen a family member got sick, I realized I didn't know all the information I needed for the different doctors. Even if I didn't needed to give the information to the doctors, there was information I needed for myself and to keep track of. I started keeping a binder and it was getting very confusing. I started looking for a better way to organize all the information. As this went on for months, I realized that I needed to record the same type of information for my family in case something happened to me in an emergency. I am very independent and take care of myself. I just know everything, but in case of emergency and someone else had to take care of me for some reason, I realized no one else had all the information except for my doctors. Then I found this. It is perfect. I got one for my family member and will be getting one for myself.
