It really lays out everything you need to know for your senior relatives, it is written in layman's terms, and formatted so I could quickly find information about the issues at hand. I highly recommend this book as an excellent starting point if you are dealing with navigating the healthcare and nursing care systems in the golden years of your or a loved one's life.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Indispensable GuidebookBy Jim BauschkeThis book does exactly what it says: It walks you step by step thru the process of planning for and dealing with elder life planning issues. Writing the book was a major undertaking

(pardon the pun!) and Jodi Clock, because of her expert background and first-hand knowledge of the subject, did a great job unbundling elder care and end-of-life issues in a way that will help countless people and their families. Navigating the Eldercare Journey: ...Without Going Broke! (Volume 1) 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Excellent Book By Cynthia A. Young I found this book through a friend. Excellent - really easy to read and understand. It covers the basics and helps define the path through the "what ifs" that we'll face when our health deteriorates. Scary thought, but real life. The book helped me realize all my ducks were NOT in a row. I want to protect everything I've worked so hard for and not lose my children's inheritance and if the unthinkable happens, I want to leave this world with grace - Jodi gives the steps to that goal. Thanks, Jodi Clock. A great read.

We've all enjoyed a good laugh at the perils of getting older. But entering your Golden Years without any money is no joke. End-of-life planning is a difficult subject to talk about—between facing mortality (either your parents or your own) to discussing the ever-confusing subject of Medicare, there's nothing fun about facing death and the issues that come with it. Navigating the Eldercare Journey...Without Going Broke! can help ease the pain of dealing with these responsibilities. This easy-to-understand guide takes you from the essentials of qualifying for Medicaid to planning a funeral—in layman's terms. Author Jodi Clock provides fundamental information on how you can maximize your hard-earned dollars to last through your retirement. Don't wait until it's too late to get end-of-life advice you need to safeguard you and your parents' assets. You have a choice—be proactive and protect your money, or help fund Uncle Sam. Don't leave it exposed and unnecessarily taxed when you or your parents pass away. No matter how prepared you think you are, the reality of death is sobering. When time is on your side you can make well-thought out decisions so you can enjoy your life to the fullest and know that you will be protected as you age.

"Jodi Clock knows more about eldercare than anyone else I know--and she cares about you and the people you love. Written with compassion and packed with information you can use, Navigating the Eldercare Journey will show you how to help your loved ones plan for their future while time is on their side. Aging is a privilege denied to many. If you care about someone who is fortunate enough to have reached this phase of life, this book is for you." —Kenn Blanchard, coauthor of The New One Minute Manager and Refire! Don't Retire From the Author If you are an adult child whose parents are aging and are faced with the possibility of helping oversee their care and or finances, not to mention end of life decisions, this book is for you! All too often people get well intended "miss-information" from friends and neighbors. Did you know that there is a difference between an estate planning attorney and an elder care attorney? Did you know that funeral planning is exempt as an asset from Medicaid? Did you know that there are many ways to reallocate your assets and still qualify for long term care assistance? This book discusses these issues and more. About the Author Jodi Clock is an end-of-life consultant who began her thirty-year career with The Forethought Group, an organization dedicated to providing innovative financial solutions for those planning for retirement and end-of-life needs. Ms. Clock has her master's degree from Spring Arbor University in Michigan and, in addition to her consulting work, helps run the family funeral business. When she's not working, you can find her volunteering with the Noah Project, a no kill animal shelter.
