

[Free] The Social Organisation of Healthcare Work

The Social Organisation of Healthcare Work

From Brand: Wiley-Blackwell
*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

 Download

 Read Online

#8636609 in Books Wiley-Blackwell 2006-04-17 Original language: English PDF # 1 9.05 x .50 x 6.101, .66
#File Name: 1405133341200 pages | File size: 78.Mb

From Brand: Wiley-Blackwell : The Social Organisation of Healthcare Work before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Social Organisation of Healthcare Work:

This book presents an international snapshot of the social organisation of healthcare. Papers describe major trends in healthcare in Australia, Canada, Finland, the Netherlands, South America, UK and the USA Subjects addressed include new models of organisational governance, new medical technologies, and the promotion of private health insurance. Highlights convergence and divergence across national and international contexts. Fosters links between organisational studies and medical sociology. Points to new research directions and developments.

From the Back Cover This book presents an international snapshot of the social organization of healthcare work. It brings together a series of papers describing major trends in health services in Australia, Canada, Finland, the Netherlands, South America, UK and the USA, including the introduction of new models of organizational governance, the emergence of new medical technologies, and the effects of the promotion of private health insurance. The book's contributors draw on research from a range of disciplines, including organisational sociology and sociology of scientific knowledge, as well as medical sociology, and foster links between these different bodies of work. What emerges is a picture of rapidly evolving healthcare systems, in which the traditional lines of demarcation are being challenged, prompting the development of new roles and new ways of working.

About the Author Davina Allen is a Professor and Research Director at the School of Nursing and Midwifery Studies, Cardiff University. Her research interests are concerned with the organization and delivery of health and social services and its relationship to clinical effectiveness, service quality and professional education and socialisation. She has published with David Hughes on Nursing and the Division of Labour in Healthcare (2002) and her recent work has focused on the co-ordination of complex care trajectories. Alison Pilnick is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology in the School of Sociology and Social Policy at the University of Nottingham. Her primary research interests are in the field of professional/client interaction, particularly the way in which changing professional roles are negotiated interactionally, and the impact of new technologies on work organization and practice. She is author of Genetics and Society (2002) and a co-editor of the journal Sociology of Health and Illness.